Disruptive Children

The Wharton County Library provides a welcoming and safe environment for patrons of all ages. This environment requires respect for staff, other patrons, and compliance with the Library's Policies.

If the child is visiting the Library WITH a parent or guardian:

- Children who are being disruptive will be asked by the staff to behave
- If the disruptive behavior continues, a staff member should inform the parent/guardian that his/her child is disturbing others
- If the parent/guardian refuses to cooperate or is unable to control the child, he/she and the child will be asked to leave

Unattended children in the Library may become frightened, anxious, bored and restless which could lead to the disturbance of others and possible hazardous outcomes for children. Therefore, no child under the age of 13 will be allowed to be left inside the library unattended.

Library staff is not responsible for unattended children's safety and inappropriate behavior.
